Yuan blue and white ceramics is famous for its unique artistic style and exquisite technology, and the use of white painting techniques adds a different kind of artistic charm. Yuan blue and white ceramic painting style is majestic, color contrast, rigorous and creative pattern layout. In this style, the painting technique has been incisively and vividly reflected, it accurately outlines the shape of the object with simple lines, making the whole picture more vivid and lifelike.

The white painting technique is particularly prominent in the Yuan blue and white ceramics, the lines are smooth and elastic, showing the outline of the object, but also depicting the delicate texture. The use of this technique not only enriches the visual effect of the picture, but also gives the ceramic works vitality and dynamics. Whether it is landscape, flowers, birds or figures, the painting technique can capture its charm with minimal strokes, making each work full of artistic tension and appeal.

The artistic characteristic of the white painting technique in Yuan blue and white ceramics lies in its precise, concise and expressive lines. These lines not only have high aesthetic value, but also carry profound cultural connotation. Through the technique of white painting, painters are able to integrate their emotions and thoughts into their works, making each piece of ceramic a unique art treasure. At the same time, the use of white painting techniques also reflects the inheritance and innovation of the traditional culture of the Yuan blue and white ceramics, laying a solid foundation for the development of ceramic art in later generations [1].

2. Specific Application of White Painting in Yuan Blue and White Ceramic Painting

2.1. Techniques and Characteristics of Line Use

In the Yuan blue and white ceramic painting, lines are the basic elements to build the picture, and the white painting technique pushes the use of these lines to the peak of art. First of all, the use of lines in the Yuan blue and white ceramic painting shows a high degree of skill. Painters take the ink line as the bone, and create a rich and varied line effect through the weight, speed and frustration of the brush strokes. These lines or rough and bold, highlighting the strength and momentum of the image; Or delicate and soft, depicting the image of the gentle and clever. The use of each line is just right to fit the characteristics of the image, making the picture vivid and infectious.

Secondly, the use of lines in the white painting technique has distinct characteristics in the Yuan blue and white ceramic painting. First, it emphasizes the independent aesthetic value of lines. In the white painting works, the line is not only the outline of the outline, but also a unique art form, each line embodies the painter's ingenuity and artistic pursuit. Second, the white lines are full of rhythm and rhythm. Painters create a unique sense of rhythm and rhythmic beauty through changes in the length, density and straightness of the lines, making the whole picture full of musical rhythm.

In addition, the use of line painting techniques also reflects the inheritance and innovation of traditional culture. Yuan blue and white ceramics as the treasure of Chinese traditional culture, its painting techniques naturally also carries a deep cultural heritage. The application of the painting technique is not only the inheritance and development of the traditional line art, but also the innovation and development on this basis. Through exquisite skills and unique artistic perspectives, painters have perfectly combined white painting techniques with blue and white porcelain art to create unique artistic masterpieces [2].

Finally, the use of the lines of the white painting technique in the Yuan blue and white ceramic painting also shows a high artistic value. These lines are not only the constituent elements of the picture, but also the carriers of the artists' emotions and thoughts. Through the delicate depiction and exquisite combination of lines, the painters successfully expressed their profound understanding and perception of nature, life and art. These emotional lines complement each other with the unique colors and textures of the Yuan blue and white ceramics, which together constitute a stunning art treasure.

2.2. Composition Layout Strategy and Principles

In the Yuan blue and white ceramic painting, the strategy and principle of composition and layout are very important, which is directly related to the overall artistic effect and aesthetic feeling of the work. The application of whitestroke in composition layout is first reflected in the clever division of space. In the picture of Yuan blue and white ceramics, painters divide the picture into different areas through the lines of white painting, each area carries a specific image and emotion. This kind of segmentation not only makes the picture rich in layers, but also guides the audience's line of sight, so that people can appreciate and understand each element in the picture one by one according to the artist's intention.

Secondly, the whitestroke technique also pays attention to the use of "white space" in the composition and layout. Blank space is an important technique in traditional Chinese art, which gives the audience infinite imagination space and makes the artistic conception of the picture more profound. In the Yuan blue and white ceramic painting, the white painting Outlines the main image through precise lines, and leaves a lot of blank around the main body, this blank is not a simple vacancy, but the artist's carefully designed art space. It allows the audience to enjoy the picture, can feel a "words are exhausted and infinite" wonderful experience.

In addition, the whitestroke technique also emphasizes the principle of contrast and coordination in the composition layout. Through the contrast of the thickness, shade and density of the lines, the painting creates a unique visual impact in the picture of the Yuan blue and white ceramics. At the same time, this contrast is carried out in the overall harmony and coordination, so that the picture is both rich in change and unity. For example, when painting landscape, the white painting shows the precipitousness of mountain peaks and the softness of flowing water through the contrast of lines, which makes the picture more vivid and interesting.

Finally, the composition layout of the whitestroke technique also reflects the pursuit of "artistic conception" in traditional Chinese aesthetics. In the picture of Yuan blue and white ceramics, through the clever combination and layout of lines, the painting creates a kind of artistic conception beauty beyond the image itself. This artistic conception beauty is the condensation of the artists' deep perception and emotional experience of life and nature, which allows the audience to feel a kind of spiritual resonance and emotional sublimation when appreciating the works.

2.3. Combination of Blue and White Porcelain with Other Painting Techniques

The specific application of white painting in Yuan blue and white ceramic painting is also reflected in its clever combination with other painting techniques of blue and white porcelain. First of all, the combination of white painting and blue and white glaze red creates a unique aesthetic feeling. Blue and white underglaze porcelain is a kind of underglaze porcelain made by drawing a pattern on the porcelain body with copper oxide as the colorant, then applying transparent glaze and burning through high temperature reduction flame. When the exquisite lines of the white painting are combined with the bright colors of the Underglaze red, it not only shows the precision and simplicity of the white painting techniques, but also highlights the warm and bold of the underglaze red, the two complement each other, forming a simple and elegant and modern artistic style.

Secondly, the combination of white painting and water separation techniques of blue and white porcelain makes the picture more rich. Water separation technique is an important technique in blue and white porcelain painting, which shows the distance level and light effect of the picture by controlling the change of the shade of the blue material. The combination of the precise depiction of the whitestroke line and the gradual rendering of the water-splitting technique not only highlights the three-dimensional and spatial sense of the image, but also makes the whole picture more vivid [3].

In addition, the combination of white painting and the point-work technique of blue and white porcelain adds more detail and texture to the picture. The point-work technique is to depict the details and texture of the object through the point-like brush strokes, which forms a useful complement to the line expression of the whitestroke technique. In the picture of the Yuan blue and white ceramic, the white painting Outlines the basic form and outline of the object, while the point technique fills the outline with rich details and textures, making the picture more delicate and realistic.

Finally, the white painting technique is combined with the decorative patterns of blue and white porcelain to form a unique decorative effect. Yuan blue and white ceramics are often painted with a variety of decorative patterns, such as lotus, moire, dragon and phoenix, these patterns are both symbolic and decorative. The combination of the lines of the whitestroke technique and these decorative patterns not only enhances the decorative effect of the picture, but also makes the whole work more rich in national characteristics and artistic charm.

3. Artistic Value and Influence of White Painting in Yuan Blue and White Ceramics

3.1. Enrichment and Enhancement of White Painting on Yuan Blue and White Ceramic Painting

The application of white painting in Yuan blue and white ceramic painting has undoubtedly brought significant enrichment and improvement to this art form. With its unique simple lines, the white painting accurately Outlines the shape of the image, adding more vividness and delicacy to the picture of the Yuan blue and white ceramics. Although the traditional blue and white porcelain has bright colors, the introduction of white painting techniques makes it more fine and artistic depth in the performance of details and lines. Through the brushstrokes, the painting of Yuan blue and white ceramics is no longer just a stack of colors, but a perfect combination of form and color, so the picture level is richer, and the visual effect is more three-dimensional and dynamic. In addition, the use of white painting techniques also makes the painting style of Yuan blue and white ceramics more diversified, satisfying the aesthetic needs of different groups, and thus promoting the development and innovation of Yuan blue and white ceramic art to a certain extent.

3.2. Aesthetic Value of White Painting in Yuan Blue and White Ceramics

The use of white painting in Yuan blue and white ceramics gives the work a unique aesthetic value. The lines of the white painting are simple and powerful, and through the change of thickness, shade and density, it shows a pure and elegant artistic beauty. This aesthetic feeling is in sharp contrast to the blue pattern of Yuan blue and white ceramics, which not only highlights the color charm of blue and white porcelain, but also highlights the rhythm of the white line. In terms of aesthetics, the use of white painting techniques makes the painting of Yuan blue and white ceramics more in line with the aesthetic taste of Chinese people, that is, the pursuit of simplicity but not simple, focusing on artistic conception rather than rigid form. At the same time, the painted lines also carry the painter's emotions and thoughts, making each work a unique artistic treasure with high aesthetic value and collection value [4].

3.3. Influence of White Painting on Later Ceramic Painting

The application of white painting in the Yuan blue and white ceramics not only had a profound impact on the ceramic painting at that time, but also had an important significance for the development of ceramic art in later generations. First of all, the exquisite use of white painting techniques improved the artistic level of later ceramic painting, making ceramic artists pay more attention to the expressive force of lines and aesthetic value. Secondly, the combination of white painting and blue and white porcelain provided innovative ideas for later ceramic artists, encouraging them to continue to explore new art forms and expression techniques on the basis of inheriting the tradition. In addition, the unique aesthetic concept of whitestroke technique had a positive impact on the creation concept of later ceramic artists, and promoted the development of ceramic art towards a more diversified and personalized direction[5].

4. Conclusion

In the painting art of Yuan blue and white ceramics, the application of white painting technique not only shows its unique artistic charm, but also deepens the connotation of ceramic culture. Through the fine portrayal of the lines, the white painting gives the blue and white porcelain with life and soul, so that each work seems to be able to tell an ancient and beautiful story.
