2. The Characteristics and Advantages of Chinese Ideological and Political Education

2.1. The characteristics of ideological and political education in China

(1) Pay attention to moral education

China's ideological and political education attaches great importance to moral education and regards it as an important cornerstone for shaping the national spirit and maintaining social stability and harmony^[4]. In this process, it not only pays attention to imparting moral knowledge, but also emphasizes the cultivation of moral emotion and the practice of moral behavior. By deeply excavating the moral resources in the excellent traditional culture of the Chinese nation, such as the values of benevolence, propriety, righteousness, and integrity in Confucianism, as well as the advocacy of socialist core values, Chinese ideological and political education is committed to cultivating peoples noble moral sentiments and correct moral concepts. This kind of education not only stays at the theoretical level, but also guides people to transform moral principles into practical actions through the little things in daily life, so as to form good behavior habits and social customs, and provide solid moral support for social harmony and stability.

(2) Emphasize collectivism

The spirit of collectivism is a distinctive feature of Chinese ideological and political education. It advocates that individual interests should be subordinate to collective interests and emphasizes that national and national interests are above all else^[5]. This educational concept is deeply rooted in the historical and cultural tradition of the Chinese nation, and embodies the spirit of the unity and common struggle of the Chinese nation. Through the education of collectivism spirit, Chinese ideological and political education aims to cultivate peoples collective consciousness and sense of responsibility, and encourage people to strive for the prosperity and strength of the country and the nation. This kind of education not only helps to enhance the cohesion and centripetal force of the country, but also stimulates peoples patriotic enthusiasm and dedication spirit, and injects strong spiritual impetus into the long-term development of the country.

(3) Pay attention to practical education

Practice is the only criterion for testing truth and an indispensable link in china's ideological and political education. Chinese ideological and political education emphasizes the combination of theory and practice, encourages students to apply what they have learned to real life, and deepen their understanding and mastery of theory through personal experience and practical activities^[6]. To this end, the school and all sectors of society actively organize all kinds of social practice, volunteer service and other activities, to provide students with a broad stage for practice. These activities not only help students to exercise their ability and increase their knowledge in practice, but also cultivate their patriotic feelings and social responsibility. By participating in social practice, students can have a deeper understanding of the development needs of the country and the practical problems of the society, thus stimulating their enthusiasm and determination to contribute to the prosperity and progress of the country and society. At the same time, practical education is also an important way to test the effect of ideological and political education. Through the feedback of practical activities, the educational content and methods can be adjusted and improved in time, so as to improve the pertinacity and effectiveness of education.

In the long-term practice and exploration, Chinese ideological and political education has gradually formed a unique theoretical system with Chinese characteristics. This theoretical system takes socialist core values as the core and integrates multiple elements such as fine traditional Chinese culture, revolutionary culture and advanced socialist culture, forming an ideological system with rich content and distinct layers. As the essence of this theoretical system, the socialist core values define the value pursuit at the three levels of the country, the society and the individual, and provide a common spiritual home for all the people. At the same time, the excellent traditional Chinese culture, as the spiritual lifeline of the Chinese nation, provides a profound cultural foundation and historical reference for ideological and political education. The revolutionary culture and the advanced socialist culture reflect the spiritual outlook and value pursuit in the course of revolution, construction and reform under the leadership of the Communist Party of China, and inject distinctive characteristics of The Times and strong spiritual power into the ideological and political education. These theoretical systems not only provide a solid theoretical foundation and guiding ideology for ideological and political education, but also provide people with a scientific world outlook, outlook on life and values, and guide people to set up correct moral concepts and codes of conduct.

3. From an International Perspective, China's Ideological and Political Education Plays a Major Role in Promoting Global Peace and Development

3.1. Carry forward the concept of peace and promote global peace

In the world tide of harmonious coexistence and common prosperity, China has always played the role of guardian of peace, unswervingly carrying forward the concept of peace and committed to promoting the process of global peace. The realization of this grand goal is not only china's responsibility as a major country, but also the profound inheritance and extensive promotion of china's excellent culture of peace^[8].

Inheriting china's excellent culture of peace is an indispensable chapter in china's ideological and political education. Since ancient times, the Chinese nation has taken the concepts of "harmony is the most valuable" and "harmony without uniformity" as the basic principles of behavior. These concepts are deeply rooted in our cultural soil and have become our common spiritual wealth. They not only emphasize the importance of harmonious coexistence, but also advocate the values of respect for differences and inclusiveness for diversity, reflecting the broad mind and profound cultural heritage of the Chinese nation^[9]. In the context of globalization, these ideas are showing new luster and have more far-reaching significance for promoting global peace. Through education and guidance, we have made more people deeply aware of the value of peace and its hard-won peace, so as to consciously enhance their awareness of peace, internalize the concept of peace in their hearts and actions, and contribute to the building of a community with a shared future for mankind.

At the same time, china's ideological and political education also actively advocates multilateralism and international cooperation to cope with the challenges and opportunities brought about by globalization. In today's deepening globalization, countries are increasingly interconnected and dependent, forming a community with a shared future. Therefore, China stressed that all countries should abandon the Cold War mentality and zero-sum game, resolve international disputes and conflicts through dialogue and consultation and mutual benefit, and jointly safeguard peace and stability in the international community. This concept will not only contribute to the improvement and reform of the global governance system, but also provides a strong guarantee for the peace and stability of the international community. We encourage all countries to cooperate on the basis of equality, respect and mutual trust to jointly address global challenges and achieve common development and prosperity.

In cultivating the emissaries of peace, china's ideological and political education has also devoted a lot of effort. We are fully aware that emissaries of peace are an important force for global peace. Therefore, through education and guidance, we can let more people know about the culture and history of different countries and nations, and enhance mutual understanding and respect. These peace emissaries with an international vision can not only play an active role on the international stage and promote global peace and development, but also serve as Bridges and ties connecting different countries and nations, and promote friendly exchanges and cooperation among countries in the world. Their actions interpret the concept of peace, convey the message of friendship, and contribute wisdom and strength to world peace and development^[10].

By inheriting china's fine culture of peace, advocating multilateralism and international cooperation, and cultivating ambassadors of peace with an international vision, we have contributed our wisdom and strength to building a more harmonious, stable and prosperous world. We believe that as long as all countries in the world uphold the concept of peace and work together, we will surely create a better future.

These activities not only give people from all over the world a chance to feel the extensive and profound Chinese culture up close, but also promote the communication and dialogue between different cultures. At the same time, Confucius Institutes, as an important window for Chinese culture to go to the world, not only teach Chinese language, but also spread multicultural content such as Chinese philosophy, history and art, so that people all over the world can have a deep understanding of the essence of Chinese culture and feel its unique charm. Such cultural exchanges not only deepen the outside worlds understanding and understanding of Chinese culture, but also provide rich cultural support and spiritual impetus for the construction of a community with a shared future for mankind.

While promoting Chinese culture to the world, china's ideological and political education also actively learns from and absorbs international advanced culture. In the context of globalization, various cultural exchanges and collisions are becoming more and more frequent, which provides unprecedented opportunities for national cultures to learn from each other. Through in-depth cooperation and exchanges with international educational institutions, China has not only introduced advanced educational concepts and methods, but also promoted the in-depth dialogue and integration of Chinese and Western cultures. This concept will not only contribute to the balanced and sustainable development of the global economy, but also enhance mutual trust and cooperation among countries, and lay a solid foundation for the harmony and stability of the international community. At a time when the global economy faces multiple challenges such as trade protectionism and unilateralism, the concept of common development has provided important guidance for all countries to work together to overcome difficulties, demonstrating a bright future for solidarity, cooperation and common development of human society.

In order to promote the concrete implementation of the concept of common development, china's ideological and political education is actively engaged in the great practice of "Belt and Road" construction. As a major strategic measure for china's opening-up in the new era, the Belt and Road aims to strengthen cooperation and exchanges with countries along the Belt and Road, and promote the implementation of cooperation projects such as infrastructure connectivity, trade and investment facilitation.
